POOR PROGRESS USUAL REPORT

"Minor" Crops Showing Some Improvement Is Indication

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—Crop and weather conditions in Southern states for the weekend yesterday were summarized by the department of agriculture today as follows:

Picking was largely at a standstill during most of the week, over much of the cotton belt, where the crop has not been harvested and considerable lowering of grade by frequent rainfall and cloudy weather was reported.

Over much of the belt, there was only about one fourth of the possible amount of sunshine, and the central and western portions had generally two or three or more inches of rainfall.

In Texas, late cotton made poor progress, though weevil and worms are less active. In Oklahoma, further deterioration was reported and there was very little picking accomplished during the week because of wetness and muddy fields.

In Arkansas harvest was practically at a standstill and there was considerable lowering of grade. The picking of outstanding cotton was delayed also in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama and harvest was largely suspended in Tennessee.

In the more eastern portions of the belt, cotton has been practically all gathered, except in North Carolina and Virginia.

Shipments of citrus are increasing in Florida and strawberry planting has been resumed there, following the rains of this week.

All minor crops show improvement in the Southern states, the cooler weather being especially favorable for cane in Louisiana, while additional rains were very helpful in the south-east. Tobacco has been about all secured in Virginia.

Condition in Alabama: Rains during week improved water situation. Light to heavy frost in interior at close. Corn harvesting quite general, but open cottonretarded by rain. Picking cotton practically finished in most sections, except some fields in scattered places; open cotton in some fields was considerably damaged by rain; some sprouting on ground; ginning good progress.

TOBACCO COMPANY CLEARED OF CHARGE

Action In Refusing To Permit Price Cuts Permissible

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—The American Tobacco company today was cleared in an opinion handed down by the United States circuit court of appeals, of charges of violating the anti-trust laws in refusing to sell to wholesalers who deliver its product to retailers at prices showing less than a legitimate rate of profit.

The action came before the court as result of an order entered by the federal commission of March, 1922, on a proceeding against the wholesale tobacco and cigar dealers association of Philadelphia, the American Tobacco company and the T. Lorillard company.

The opinion held that the American Tobacco company acted to protect its own interest and the interest of the trade both and to enable jobbers to make a reasonable profit.

"We see nothing unlawful in the policy pursued," the ruling said.

Visitors Entertained At Dance Last Night By Local Club

C. L. Saunders this afternoon defeated Hubert Young, winning the Muscle Shoals Golf Association championship.

C. L. Saunders, of the Valley Country Club, and Hubert Young, of Florence, this afternoon were fighting it out on the local club's courses for the championship of the Muscle Shoals Golf Association.

Young won his way into the finals by defeating Dr. W. P. Baugh, another local entry, this morning.

At the fourth hole this afternoon, Young was one up on Saunders, but Young drove into the trap on this hole, while Saunders' drive carried to the green. It seemed likely that Saunders would even the count.

Saunders yesterday defeated Martin, the present cup holder, Baugh won from Meade and Young eliminated Fussell. In the second flight, Rankin defeated Sharp and Beasley defeated Rainey. In the finals for this flight this morning, Beasley won by default, Rankin being unable to meet him.

In the third flight Smithers of the local club, won from Ketchum of Florence.

The tournament has been a most successful one, having brought together a number of the best amateur golfers of North Alabama, Southern Tennessee and Eastern Mississippi.

Last night the visitors were guests of honor at a dance at the Valley Country clubhouse.

Second Uniformed Unit Planned Here

At a meeting of the club tonight the Albany-Decatur Grotto club will organize a patrol making the second uniform unit to be added to the club since its organization a little more than a year ago.

The club band which was organized only a few months ago, has made wonderful progress and made an excellent showing in the parade at the recent ceremonial held in Birmingham. At present it is composed of thirteen pieces with several to be added during the month.

The two uniform units will begin preparations at once to get in shape to attend the Grand Council of the Grotto to be held in St. Louis next year where they expect to compete for honors in the grand parade where the uniform events of every Grotto in the realm will be represented.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE (Copyright, 1925, By The Star Co.) For Albany-Decatur Daily.

ANCIENT HISTORY is written by guess work and inference, because the ancients had no newspapers. Caesar, "the demagogue," of his day, wrote on the walls of Rome about doings in the senate that common people might read. But he wasn't much of an editor.

IT IS different now, and the historian of 2025 will examine old newspaper files, find reports in the main wonderfully accurate, and write history, not imagination.

When 100 years hence he comes to Tuesday morning, October 20, he will get a fairly accurate picture of the civilization of our day.

First Sessions Are Held In Auditorium Of New High School

(Associated Press)

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 21—Strains of "Dixie" this morning opened the 25th annual reunion of the Alabama division of Confederate Veterans in Tuscaloosa. It sent more than 300 gray-haired men, gathered for the occasion, to cheering wildly and a youngster, who walks with a stick, forgot the cane, to jig to the tune.

More than 1200 persons were gathered in the new high school auditorium.

Dr. Paull, general chairman for the reunion, as representatives of the Tuscaloosa camp of Sons of Confederate Veterans, presided during the addresses of welcome and later turned the meeting over to Col. John R. Kennedy, of Tuscaloosa, commander of the second Alabama brigade.

Rev. W. B. Crumpton, chaplain general of the Alabama Division of United Confederate Veterans, asked the invocation, remembering the glorious "harmony and comradeship prevailing at these reunions" and those not present.

Rhodes when he fell in conflict at Winchester, Va., John R. Latham, commander of the local camp of Sons of Veterans, Mrs. C. N. ## PROMINENT MEN OF MACON ROUNDED UP IN PROHI CAMPAIGN

Sixteen Caught During City-wide Raids By Dry Officials

DOORS BATTERED DOWN BY RAIDERS

Coup Followed Weeks Of Preparation By Under-cover Men

(Associated Press)

MACON, Ga., Oct. 21—Sixteen Macon men, well known in the city's commercial life, were awaiting hearings today by United States Commissioner W. E. Martin, on charge of violating the national prohibition law.

They were captured in a series of raids last night by federal prohibition officers, led by state prohibition administrator Fred B. Dismukes.

Heavily barricaded doors were battered down and barred windows were crashed in, and, in one instance, the officers came in through a skylight, in the raid.

All of those captured were confined in jail and Commissioner Martin turned a deaf ear on their pleas for a midnight hearing so they could make bail.

The raids followed several weeks of preparation by Mr. Dismukes, in which "under cover" men were sent to buy liquor. The prisoners are regarded by Mr. Dismukes as the aristocracy of Macon bootleggers.

Whiskey was found in every place raided, he declared.

Among those arrested were: W. O. Swift, owner of a large taxi cab company; Harry Grigg, proprietor of the Eagle hotel; John Amerson, F. L. Davidson and Nubby and Carlton Simpton, proprietors of grocery stores.

TELL OF VISITS TO WILKES HOME

Witness Relates Story Of Long Drive In "Gift Car"

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 21—Maden Alford Wilkes, confessed slayer of Jake Giamalva, now on trial for his life, will know his fate tonight, provided the jury is able to agree.

The defense called its last rebuttal witness this morning and the prosecution announced at the same time it was willing to rest.

Roderick Beddow, special prosecutor, began his final plea for the state shortly before noon.

The chief development today was the attempt of the defense to impeach Evelyn Dorothy Wilkes, star witness for the state, who testified Tuesday that the first and only time she had ever seen Giamalva he had been brought to the Wilkes home by her father.

Elizabeth Wilkes, 15 year old daughter of the defendant, was called as a rebuttal witness and testified that she knew her sister, Dorothy, had known Giamalva for four years, that he had been at the Wilkes home several times each week and that Dorothy had seen him as often as six times in a single week.

Irene Wilkes, nine years old, took the stand for the first time during the trial to testify that she had been out riding with Giamalva and her mother and Dorothy. She also stated that she and her mother had been to the man's home, but the objection of the prosecution to this testimony was upheld by the court and it was ruled out.

W. E. Wilson, also called as a rebuttal witness, told of his visits to the Wilkes home in Detroit shortly before Christmas last year. He testified that he had been present when Mrs. Wilkes received a $20 check from Giamalva and that she had said "if I couldn't send more than that, I wouldn't send anything."

In rebuttal of the Wilkes girl's testimony, Wilson said that he had been present several times when Wilkes tried to persuade his wife to "give the man up for the sake of his children" and added that Dorothy had been present and had taken part in the discussions.

The decision of the state not to place Mrs. Wilkes on the stand came as a distinct surprise, although the prosecution had hinted Tuesday that she would not be brought into the case. Both she and a Mrs. "Stevens," the woman mentioned several times in connection with the final quarrel of Wilkes and his wife, were present Tuesday.

Wilson's testimony threw the first definite light on the "blue car" said to have been given Mrs. Wilkes by Giamalva. He testified that he and the Wilkes family drove to Detroit in the car last October. The state used his testimony that Wilkes drove the car to Detroit as an argument against the "unwritten law" plea of the defense.

Dr. Hunter has done a substantial work since taking the pastorate here and hundreds of friends of all religious denominations are hoping that he will remain in these cities.

Speaking of the work during the past year, the Methodist pastor said today that he was more than pleased with the excellent results and looked forward to a redoubling in efforts for the ensuing year.

12 Years Ago TODAY

From The Daily of
October 21, 1913

Walnut street is being covered, from Bank to Railroad streets, with a thick layer of crushed cinders, thus relieving the muddy condition of the thoroughfare.

Dr. Claud Daniel won third pen at the Birmingham Poultry Show with his Buff-Orpingtons. S. C. Maulsby is visiting his mother, Mrs. Fannie Maulsby on Third avenue.

Jack McCulloch is critically ill at his home on Moulton street.

Miss Helen Bynum and Mrs. Burke of Virginia have returned to Courtland after visiting Mrs. B. P. Wallace.

Could we but make a carbon copy of the acts which we go through with each day, as the business man keeps his files, there would not be so many mistakes and errors; people do not commit errors of any sort intentionally.

Occupants of automobiles bearing Indiana license tags and headed for Florida will soon be singing with fervor, "I'm going back to Indiana and I never more will roam." Indiana newspapers find plenty to worry about with the apparent desire of the population to move in a body to the land of sand and sunshine.

A heavy frost has fallen upon the Valley section but there is doubt if even a killing frost can keep the Valley from leading the rest of the state in agricultural resource. We have the richest lands in the state, some of the finest people in the state, progressive communities, good farmers. A section cannot be held near the foot of the list with such an outlay of valuable assets. Again, we are looking forward to one of our best years in agriculture and industry.

It occurs to us that the physicians of these two cities and those immediately adjacent to the towns can accomplish some fine results for themselves and for the people who daily visit their offices if they could inaugurate a plan by which a four or five story structure can be built, to be known as the physicians building. The idea is generally adopted in other cities of like size in population and it seems that a similar plan could easily be worked out here. Our physicians are doing a wonderful work in keeping this section of the Valley in a healthy condition, but the offices, located as they are at the present time, are very difficult for people to find, particularly strangers who do not understand directions. The building would likewise serve as an ideal location for the Tennessee Valley laboratory, which at the present is taxed for adequate room in which to carry on a fine work. Think the matter over and see if such a plan cannot be evolved.

The subject of good roads gets very old with some people but it never is too old to talk about, particularly when the very pulse of the city trade is regulated by the arteries of commerce leading to and from the commercial centers. North Alabama is in far better shape than it has ever been before so far as roads run, but roads don't run very far. A mile here and a mile there, then the inevitable battle with mud. The agriculturist in his strongly built two-horse wagon has just as much difficulty in getting over a mud road as the traveler who slips and slides his way through at the steering wheel of a motor-propelled vehicle. The sooner the eyes of the highway commission are focused upon the northern section of Alabama, the better is the result going to be for the entire state. The northern section is the guardian of commerce coming into the state from the lands to the north. That commerce isn't coming to this state unless here is a road foundation to travel upon at all times of the year.

TAX OFFICES NOW OPEN TO THE MORGAN COUNTIES

Things are looking up at the Morgan county courthouse. Of course some degree of the new activity is reflected in the interest being taken in the present sessions of the Morgan county court, now in session with a great many cases on the criminal docket, still many people are going to the tax offices of the county seat, paying all sorts of licenses, some are even taking time by the forelock and paying county and state taxes.

Far be it from The Daily to call attention to the disagreeable things that must transpire in this life, but the automobile license will be delinquent after November 14th. That means that a great many people from all sections of the county must come in between now and that specified time to pay up or stop riding. City officials will see to it that people who are not properly provided with 1926 license plates will stop riding. There's no escape. It's pay now or forever patronize the shoe leather interests.

It is to the interest of the tax payer and the tax official alike that people pay their taxes on time at the courthouse. Last year there was a great rush at the last moment, the writer was in the rush of people who had not paid their taxes, a disagreeable task under disagreeable circumstances. Officials are able to serve you now, give them an opportunity.

The last minute rush is just as inopportune for the official as it is for the fellow who is paying his taxes. Get the worry off your mind now.

OPEN SEASON ON FALL COLDS STARTED WITH THERMOMETER DROP

From now on there will be a battle raging in this section against poor, little defenseless germs causing a rise in the price of pocket handkerchiefs. The fall season for catching colds is now open, in accordance with the annual custom adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Public in waiting to buy the necessary wearing apparel, continuing to wear summer clothes in fall weather. Seriously, the early fall weather is a danger. The rapid change from a roasting summer sun to a damp and chilly autumnal northern breeze is a bit too fast even for modern people.

Watching the dreaded enemy will be the job of folks throughout the winter months. Too great care cannot be exercised in breaking up early fall colds, dangerous maladies often result from allowing a minute infection to exist. Physicians may talk to people until their breath is gone, but if people do not take the well meant advice then all the talk goes for naught. Get the habit now in breaking up fall colds. A cold will make you disagreeable in the home, will cut your efficiency at the office about 50 per cent. Take care now that you may prevent serious consequences in the future. Do not allow the cold to gain headway, it is hard to stop. Physicians have a great many important cases in weather like this; if you are not careful you may be listed as one of the doctor's most important cases; later your name will appear in the "Personals" of your daily newspaper as being critically ill at your home on a Twin city street. Take care of yourself now and the physician will not have to take care of you later.

AT LAST SOMEONE SEES AN IMPROVEMENT IN THE JAZZ AGE

At last someone sees something good in the jazz age, though he does not attribute the good result as being directly connected with this distorted age of which we often read in real life and in fiction. Rather, the writer tells us that the establishment, of hospitals and rest wards will ultimately mean that people are to live to be at least 75 years old, there will be no excuse for their death at any earlier age.

Only a few months ago the stories broadcast in this glorious land of ours were of an entirely different color. People were to die almost in immaturity, in point of years, the jazz age and the attendant evils would soon exact a toll from which there could be no escape. Living in such an age was a doom in itself. We are glad to note that some have turned about and are looking into the future rather than into the past.

People of today are not a bit worse in the manner of living than they were years ago. The old home hearth with the family group seated about eating chestnuts and reading the Bible is usually the picture brought to mind when we hear of the "good old days," yet we were not present at the eating or the reading and we are not at all certain that these were chief among the diversions sought by the people of an era now gone by.

The folks that we know are the people of today, living and enjoying life, people who are not afraid of what the neighbor may say and therefore do not have to hide themselves to avoid a cloud of talk. Thus we rush along from day to day, doing not a few acts of kindness, working for our own benefit which is the real spirit of honorable competition, taking all that life offers and giving the God-given talents which we may possess. Death rates are not a great deal higher; we simply have a greater number of newspapers to tell us about it. Crime is more widespread, our population is so much greater. Religion is of greater influence; there are more people attending the church, pastors are well paid, school facilities are taxed each year as children seek to learn, parents who did not have the advantage of education see their own failures and try to prepare their own with the utmost care in the selection of schools and the election of school officials who select the faculty. The prosperous condition of the country was never at a higher level, the miseries of anti-prohibition days are gone forever, the jazz age must not be so bad after all. Freedom is not crime and freedom is the spirit of the age in which we are living and thriving. Yes, we have the desire to be here 75 years; may the good physician who predicts the bright outlook be correct in his guess.

ONE REASON WHY GREAT STATESMEN NO LONGER INHABIT SENATE HALLS

There has been quite a controversy recently between the southern and northern newspapers over the small number of men in congressional halls today who are qualified as statesmen to be there. The North claims that the South has failed and that there are no longer able statesmen to represent this glorious section of our America. The Southern newspapers come back in characteristic fiery Southern expression and call the attention of Northern newspapers to a similar condition among the representatives of the New England states. Both claim that the other has fallen below the standards of days of long ago and both are entirely correct in their accusations.

There must be a reason for this apparent lack of able men to represent the forty-eight commonwealths composing the United States. Men today are just as gifted as they were half a century ago, minds are just as good, men think as deeply and consider the mass of the people to a far greater extent for the old practice of class distinction is practically a thing of the past. America is a democracy in the true sense of the word and the high and low will share alike, else the foundation of our government would be shaken.

The truth of the matter is this, statesmen, diplomats are placed far behind in the race for political honors. The man who can get up and stir the crowd with a raft of political propaganda and bunkum, rides into office ahead of his opponents, though his opponents may be far more efficient and well qualified for the position. The congressional halls no longer ring with the speeches of patriots bent upon serving the government and the people to the best advantage of both, statesmen apparently are lacking in their own convictions and wait to see which way the political weathervane is pointing before they make an utterance or cast a vote.

Take for instance the stir and turmoil that has stood in Congress for the past ten years over the Muscle Shoals situation. Would statesmen of another day stand for such rank carelessness in the handling of the reigns of government? Would they stand by and wait for the opinions of corporations, trusts, syndicates and individual money giants, before they dare cast a vote in either direction. The answer is obviously no, had such a thing taken place years ago there would have been new faces in congressional halls as soon as an election was again held.

The reason there are not statesmen in congress today is seen in the failure of statesmen to desire such positions. If statesmen of the old type desired a seat at Washington the people would surely cast a vote in their favor. There is a vast difference in a statesman and a politician what comes of being a radical and a communist," but run over the telephone list in Newport and you find married ladies changing their names almost as rapidly as the lightning bug changes its illumination. At Newport they are not "red communists." It's a combination of inside urge and outside attraction not radicalism, that does the mischief.

ON the steamship Deutschland yesterday came Von Hoogertran, who directs the Philharmonic orchestra and in the hold of the ship 20,000 canaries, the biggest shipment ever known to supply Christmas trade.

IF you doubt that "acquired characteristics are inherited," consider these canaries, all able to sing well. A few centuries hence in about 1000 centuries perhaps human beings will be born with musical and other abilities, as surely as the little canary inside the egg contains the inherited power to sing, in its tiny brain.

HUMAN BEINGS, with brains more complicated, bigger than brains of birds, ants or bees, will be born with a thousand kinds of well developed knowledges in one brain. That will be the beginning of a civilization and a race worth while.

EUROPEANS having decided to stop cutting each other's throats temporarily at least are having a love feast. Frenchmen and Germans shake hands and smile. And responsible correspondents startle you a little, by announcing that Europe is determined to force the United States into the league without any reservations. That program may go through and then again it may not.

EUROPE does not like Yankeeism and gets more bitter as we ask for something "on account." It is even suggested that it might pay the nations of Europe to unite and fight the United States, rather than pay ten billions of dollars with interest. However, those nations have recently learned that a big war started to save ten or fifteen billions wouldn't be profitable. The last one cost two hundred and fifty billions.

THE Society for the Prevention of Crime will offer a prize for "the best scheme for abating crime in New York City."

A COURAGEOUS, high-spirited man was always drunk when in New York. On various expeditions to the Arctic Circle he kept sober. He was interested. Men turn criminals or drunkards when they are bored or poor. Give them excitement or money or both and they will mend their ways. But how are you going to do that?

AT least fifty thousand men that used to work for $5 a day are now making $200 a day in the bootleg traffic. What will you offer in place of that, good Society for the Prevention of Crime?

AT Harrisburg, Pa., Michael Weiss and John Girsch are under sentence of death. They solemnly say "justice should be the same in all cases." They demand that their lives be spared because two rich boys in Chicago, Loeb and Leopold, were not executed for a crime inconceivably vile and cruel.

FUTURE historians reading today's newspapers, will observe that in a glorious republic money counts in politics, murder, society and everything.

OF THE WEEK

HOME CONSERVATION

What a wonderful reversal of present conditions in this county would be the result, if each land owner would plant five acres of wheat on land that would make wheat each year. I would guarantee at least that planter plenty of wheat for his family for the year and give him in addition a fine quantity of wheat straw, which has become a valuable commodity during the past few years, as there is a constant market for this product. A well known dealer here recently received a car load of wheat straw from Tennessee and finds ready sale for it.

Formerly in this county there was a large acreage annually sown to wheat. Some years were good wheat years, some were not so good. The same conditions apply to cotton and corn, and neither of these two important commodities are abandoned because there is a bad year occasionally and the yield is not what it should be.

This is the only reason the writer has heard advanced why wheat is not industriously planted each fall, many planters maintaining that it does not do well in this section.

If by a combined effort barely enough was raised each season to bread the farmer and his family, that would be recompense enough to justify the effort, it would seem.

In the Falkville, Lacon and Cedar Plains neighborhood were formerly the best wheat producing sections of this county. The writer knew when as many as three threshing machines found steady work for several weeks following each wheat harvest.

The fact that there is a good flouring mill in the county, located at Falkville, that has been turning out a splendid article of flour for several years is another strong argument for more wheat planting. Much of the grain ground on this mill is shipped in from other sections adding to the cost of the finished product.

It is a solemn fact, that so long as we ship in from other sections the things which can be grown in this section, we are failing to take advantage of the potential qualities of our soil, and must therefore pay tribute to other sections, and thereby neglect our natural resources; and this is a constant source of impoverishment.

The time was, and not so many years past, when this county grew corn to sell, and annually car lots of it was shipped to less fortunate communities.

To a layman it would seem that, to raise wheat, corn and meat would be a long step toward bringing back the days of living on the things which can be raised at home, and thereby stop the steady stream of these three important food products from other sections who pay more attention to the raising of them than we do, and annually get a large share of the cotton money from this section because we are not awake to the opportunity which lies at our very doors.

If the writer might be permitted to suggest a plan, he would suggest that a call be made, county wide, for the planters of this county to come together at some central point, and let the central theme of that meeting be, "five acres of wheat this fall on every farm." It is possible and plausible that a campaign of this sort begun at once would be of inestimable value to the people of all sections of this wonderful county. The land with its wonderful potential qualities is here; the seed can be gotten, and as the farmer sows these seeds of bread over the acres, he can see out in the future ripened waving grain glistening in the rays of a June sun waiting for the harvest cycle.

"Oh, why can't I have a skin like other girls? Why do I have to have these ugly pimples, blotches and blackheads?"

"If I could only find something that would clear up my skin and give me back my soft, rosy complexion, I know I would be the happiest girl in the world! What can I do?"

Is that you talking? If it is, you don't have to worry a minute! Just build up the rich, red blood in your body. Then your skin will be as clear and soft as anybody's.

Tide Picked Win By 3 Touchdowns

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 21.—Will Georgia Tech be able to smother the great aerial attack of the Alabama Crimson Tide next Saturday, when the two great teams meet in conflict on Grant field? That is the question that is forecast in the minds of 'Bama grid fans right now, as it seems that the outcome of the game will depend upon whether or not the Golden Tornado can cope with 'Bama's overhead thrusts.

Many of the experts of the South are conceding that the game between the Tide and the Tornado Saturday will be the conference title battle, saying that the winner of this game will wear the crown of the champions of the conference after Thanksgiving. Whether or not this is true remains to be seen, but it is certain that the game will have far-reaching effects.

As to the winner, nobody can speak with authority, but it looks like Alabama. Some of the dopesters have gone so far as to predict that if the Tide is right, the score will be rather top-heavy. A three touchdown margin is forecast for the Tide by these daring ones.

On the whole the teams look well balanced. Both aggregations have good backfields and strong lines, and both are well-coached. The deciding factor, it seems will be the aerial work that will be uncoiled by each. Alabama's backs are past masters of this phase of the game, as has been demonstrated, but Tech's ability along this line is yet unknown.

Outside of this game, there is nothing especially interesting going to be offered by teams of the state. Howard and Auburn are to meet on Drake Field in what may be an upset, but Auburn should have the win easily. Birmingham-Southern goes to New Orleans for a game with Loyola, an affair that is decidedly uncertain.

The only thing that will be interesting enough to shine in the face of the great glow from the Tech-Alabama tilt Saturday, is an upset down at Auburn, by which the Howard Bulldogs whip the Tiger. Auburn should win easily, as said before, but if the Tiger is stale from the intensive grind undergone at Dallas, these Howardites are certain to make things interesting. The Bulldogs are better this year than they have been for many seasons, and with one William Hancock running in the backfield they carry a threat any team that is off edge. It seems that it will be necessary to take this Howard game seriously, if Auburn does not want to have a scare. Too much over-confidence and too many substitutes at the start of the game may give the Bulldogs the jump.

The count of conference games won now stands at two and two between Auburn and Alabama. The Tide evened the count Saturday by decisively beating the Sewanee Tiger, as was predicted. Alabama unleashed a driving aerial attack in this game that completely crushed the vaunted Tiger and which bodes ill for Tech. The smoke screen cast by many sport writers as to Sewanee's ability was completely blown away Saturday. Sewanee is good, but not when they are playing the team that represents the Capstone this year.

Auburn lost nothing of her conference standing by her defeat at the hands of the Texas Longhorns. The Tiger did lose much of its fighting energy, however, throwing away needed strength in an effort to curb the powerful Texas eleven. The Tiger was expected to lose this game, but such a score as 33-0 was not anticipated. A post-mortem of the affair reveals that it was just a case of the brilliant air game of the Auburns being met with a similar attack, much more brilliant.

One result of this game has been a growing dissatisfaction among Southern fans of the practice of going out to Texas to play. The contention is that the game is not worth the candle, in that the conditions that have to be met make such contests impractical. Fans think there is plenty of fight to be found closer at hand without having to throw in a terrible trip like the one that a game in Texas entails.

Birmingham-Southern provided another disappointment Friday. This team, which was highly touted at the opening of the season, allowed the Mississippi College team to tie up a 25-25 farce. In justice to the local Panthers, however, it must be said that the Mississippians got all the breaks and all the luck, not earning many of their tallies. Still the score stands a tie, and breaks of the game and luck cannot alter the score.

Howard has about reached the point normal on the same day that Southern played Mississippi. In a game marked by a liberal use of substitutes, the Bulldogs trimmed the teachers by two touchdowns, saving much reserve strength to hurl at Auburn Saturday.

Howard has about reached the point where she can afford to jockey in subs to play the teams she used to fear, in order to point for the stronger teams.

SPORTS

Alabama-Georgia Tech Fight Looms As Heavy Tussel of Week On Southern Grid

Looming as the heaviest battle of the week in the southern grid arena is the Alabama-Georgia Tech fight in Atlanta stands out like a giant among pygmies with fandom in this state. Of course other southern elevens are taking the field as usual this weekend and some hard games are scheduled, but none seem to hold a candle light to the Tide-Tornado go on Grant field.

Looking at the statistics it would seem that the teams are about on an even footing. The cry of the past few weeks that Alabama has a green line is about spent. The Tide line has engaged in several conflicts to date and they are due to be over their temporary scheduled stage fright. The Tide backfield is as brilliant as that Yellow Jacket string of ball toters with the exception of Doug Wykoff who is cast in a similar role with Pooley Hubert, Crimson giant who has cut a wide swathe in hammering tactics.

However, the Jackets have the edge over the Alabamians with a number of hard battles to date. Georgia Tech has taken on and defeated Virginia Military Institute, always a hard assignment though the Tornado completely wrecked the Virginia offensive drive. A week later the Techmen travelled to the far flung Yankee Stadium to hand Penn State a defeat.

Penn State may not be up to tow this year in the way of a football aggregation, as some writers point out, but State always has a team that is equal to any of the best of southern elevens if only mediocre from an eastern standpoint. Last week Georgia Tech completely eliminated Florida, one of the supposed leaders in the fight for Southern laurels. A team with such a record cannot be looked upon as easy meat for the Crimson regardless of the style of play the Wade cohorts may adopt.

Alabama on the other hand has downed Sewanee and Louisiana state, neither impressive games. Naturally the Sewanee clan always fights hardest against the Tide and it is to be remembered that a Crimson victory in that direction is not regarded as a minor affair.

If the Crimson Tide is right on next Saturday and their aerial attack is working in good shape they may get away with a small margin victory. If Alabama attempts to break the wall of Techmen there will be a different story to tell.

With both clubs opened up in offensive play we predict a two touchdown margin for the Techmen. Neither is likely to adopt a defensive game unless the ground is wet in which case Wade may try for a break over the punting route.

Private Ownership of the Railroads.

As a result of careful economies and improved efficiency—brought about by trained railroad men—the steam carriers of the United States have, since their return to their owners at the termination of Federal control on March 1, 1920, notwithstanding an increase of 46% in taxes, reduced their operating expenses by a total of more than one and a third billion dollars.

Such expenses, including taxes, for the year 1920 were nearly six billion dollars; whereas in 1924, notwithstanding the movement of approximately 7½% more carloads of traffic, they were reduced to four and a half billion dollars, or a reduction in four years of practically 20%—demonstrating conclusively the wisdom of railroads being operated by trained railroad men.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad reduced its operating expenses in 1924, as compared with 1920, $14,250,000. This large reduction was passed on to the public in the form of a fifteen-million dollar saving in freight costs, and was effected notwithstanding the actual increase in the amount of traffic, amounting to approximately 20%.
